

[LIVESTREAMS] Miss Universe 2024 Live Free Full Show ON November 17, 2024

Live from the Arena CDMX in Mexico City, Mario Lopez and former Miss Universe Olivia Culpo host the 73rd Miss Universe competition!

Returning to Mexico for the first time since 2007, this year's event features 130 women from around the globe. Miss Universe 2018 Catriona Gray and Zuri Hall will provide live commentary, and Grammy-nominated artist Robin Thicke is scheduled to perform.

Miss Nicaragua 2023 Sheynnis Palacios took home top honors at last year's Miss Universe event and will be on hand to crown this year's winner. Who will be the 73rd Miss Universe? Time will tell.

MANILA, Philippines – The full list of winners in the Miss Universe 2024, the 73rd edition of the Miss Universe competition, will be announced on Sunday, November 17 (Philippine time) during the grand coronation night at the Arena CDMX in Mexico City, Mexico. The Summit Express updates this page for the live results as the competition happens.

A record-breaking 125 candidates are vying for the most coveted title and the privilege of being the Miss Universe 2024.

The Philippines' bet, Chelsea Manalo, the first Pinay of Afro-American descent to represent the country, is eyeing for the fifth Miss Universe crown for the country, after Gloria Diaz (1969), Margie Moran (1973), Pia Wurtzbach (2015), and Catriona Gray (2018).

For this year's edition, the Miss Universe Organization increased the semi-finalists to 30, marking the highest number of semifinalists in the history of the pageant.

Is it a bird? Is it a winged goddess? Is it an ode to the history of traditional Dutch ceramics?

At Miss Universe 2024, it was all those things — and much more — as the annual pageant kicked off with its flamboyant national costume competition Thursday evening.

Tasked with modeling looks that represent their homelands, 126 contestants took the stage at the Arena CDMX in Mexico City ahead of Saturday's grand finale. And while many looked to folk arts, deities or their nations' flags for inspiration, others took more outlandish approaches.

Miss Nicaragua, Geysell García, came dressed as her country's famous León Cathedral. Kenyan beauty queen Irene Mukii's costume meanwhile featured the faces of several notable athletes, a nod to her country's prowess in long-distance running. And Miss Chile, Emilia Dides, stepped out wearing a huge roulette wheel as a tribute to popular Chilean TV variety show "Sábado Gigante."

Elsewhere, contestants turned to national flora and fauna, from Miss Bangladesh Aniqá Alam's tiger-themed costume to the red-eyed elephant protruding from Miss Ivory Coast Marie-Emmanuelle Diamala's outfit. Miss Myanmar, Thet San Andersen, burst out of a golden owl costume to reveal a pair of sparkling wings, while Great Britain's Christina Chalk arrived on stage in a foliage-covered outfit inspired by the 121 million oak trees found in the United Kingdom.

Part of the glitzy pageant's preliminary round, the costume segment was immediately followed by a swimwear contest. The winners of both will be announced on Saturday before the finalists are narrowed down to a shortlist of 30, who will then compete to inherit the Miss Universe crown from reigning titleholder Sheynnis Palacios of Nicaragua.

The semi-finalists were determined in the preliminary competition held on November 14 (November 15 Manila time).

Meanwhile, four continental queens and one fan-vote winner will be announced, each automatically advancing to the semifinals.

Then, 12 out of 30 candidates will move on to compete at the evening gown portion.

Only five hopefuls will vie for the crown in the finals during the question and answer round.

The 73rd edition of the Miss Universe pageant is approaching its grand finale in Mexico City. Contestants from around the world have competed in several rounds, including the traditional costume parade and preliminary events, to win the prestigious title. The preliminaries, where the candidates will parade in swimsuit and traditional costume, took place on Thursday, November 14. The grand finale, where the new Miss Universe will be announced, will be broadcast live on Saturday, November 16 through the official Miss Universe YouTube channel.

The 73rd edition of the world's most prestigious beauty pageant, Miss Universe, arrives in Mexico. With 130 candidates from all corners of the globe, this event promises to be a night full of glamour and emotions. The competition, which defines itself as a global platform to celebrate diversity and empower women, will take place at the Arena CDMX in Mexico City.

The previous edition of Miss Universe crowned Sheynnis Palacios from Nicaragua. This year, expectations are high and millions of viewers around the world will tune in to see who will be the next woman to wear the crown. Don't miss this event full of beauty, talent and culture, and be part of Miss Universe history.
