Subject: Guidelines on the calculation of 8-years research experience in Postdoctoral Fellowships under Horizon Europe

1. BACKGROUND
 In the framework of the Horizon Europe Postdoctoral Fellowships (PF) 2021 call, applicants, at the date of the call deadline, must:

- be in possession of a doctoral degree
- have a maximum of 8 years full-time equivalent (FTE) experience in research, measured from the date of award of the first doctoral degree. All applicants that have received their PhD after 12/10/2013 are automatically eligible to apply provided the remaining eligibility criteria are met.

The rule of the 8 years full-time equivalent experience in research after the PhD can be extended (in days) for the following reasons:

- Maternity leave (18 months – i.e. 548 days for each child born after the PhD award date unless the applicant can document a longer parental leave prior to the call deadline;
- Paternity leave (the documented time of parental leave taken until the call deadline for each child born after the PhD award date);
- Research in a non-associated Third Country (only for nationals or long-term residents of Member States or Associated Countries, wishing to reintegrate in Europe) – only for European Postdoctoral Fellowships
- Career break;
- Compulsory national service;
- Time spent not working in research (career breaks are not included in this section). The period spent in a non-research position should be completely deducted from the FTE experience in research. However, for a period spent in a research position, the time spent outside of your main research activity (including teaching) could be deducted as a percentage of FTE provided that it can be documented by e.g. work contract/job description and quantified based on documentation/proof which the host organisation (beneficiary) needs to keep for their records (not to be included in the proposal). Please use the embedded calculator in the wizard for each of your employment contract(s) for a calculation of the FTE to be deducted from the research experience.
- Long term sick leave (periods > 30 days);

This document, together with the corresponding self-assessment tool, aims to guide the applicants towards calculating the possible deductions of their 8 years FTE experience in research.

M3CA-PF: self-assessment tool - 8 years of research experience - INSTRUCTIONS

STEP 1
 1. Indicate the date of PhD award (mandatory)
 2. Indicate the gender of the researcher (optional)
 3. Consult the initial outcome of this self-assessment, and if needed proceed to step 2.

STEP 2
 1. Fill out any relevant category of deduction (using full days) – do not deduct the same period in multiple categories:

| | |
|---------------------------------------|--|
| Maternity leave: | Minimum 548 days per child born after the PhD award date, on the exact duration, whichever is longest. |
| Paternity leave: | Exact duration per child born after the PhD award date. |
| Time spent not working in research: | The period spent in a non-research position should be completely deducted from the FTE experience in research. However, for a period spent in a research position, the time spent outside of your main research activity (including teaching) could be deducted as a percentage of FTE provided that it can be documented by e.g. work contract/job description and quantified based on documentation/proof which the host organisation (beneficiary) needs to keep for their records (not to be included in the proposal). Please use the embedded calculator in the wizard for each of your employment contract(s) for a calculation of the FTE to be deducted from the research experience. |
| Career breaks: | Any other career breaks, such as unemployment. |
| National service: | Time spent in national service. |
| Long term sick leave: | Only documented periods of more than 30 days are considered as long term sick leave. |
| Research experience in third country: | Such research activities can be deducted only for nationals or long-term residents of Member States or Associated Countries, wishing to reintegrate in Europe. |

2. Consult the final outcome of this self-assessment
